

META ADS COMPETITOR SCAN

Georgian Book Market Report

A full-competitive-set scan of Meta Ad Library activity across six Georgian publishing advertisers — new launches, durable creatives, and strategic patterns.

FIVE THINGS THAT MATTER FROM THIS SCAN

- 1 Biblusi launched Litbox. Three ads for a curated book-plus-lifestyle subscription box went live May 13–14. Celebrity endorsement (Mancho Nozadze). Direct competing surface with Palitra L's subscription funnel. New format Sulakauri has no equivalent for.
- 2 Palitra L's 218-day subscription explainer is the most durable creative in the set. A "how to become a website subscriber" video ad (ID 688406637668355) has run since March 18 — 57 days and still active. At that duration it is almost certainly profitable and is the anchor of their acquisition funnel.
- 3 Biblusi is the most active tester with 11 new ads in 30 days across discounts, bundles, a digital catalog, puzzles, games, and now Litbox. Structured parallel tests, not spray-and-pray.
- 4 Artanuji has zero currently active ads. Their seven "new" entries are historical 2021–2024 ads surfacing for the first time. Effectively dark on Meta right now.
- 5 Intelekti ran a 5-hour flash sale — every book for 15 GEL from 15:00–20:00 on May 15. Time-gating urgency mechanic that no other competitor is using.

COMPETITIVE SET OVERVIEW

ADVERTISER	STATUS	ACTIVE ADS	LONGEST RUNNING	PRIMARY MECHANIC	THREAT LEVEL
Biblusi	● Active	11	15 days	Discount stack + Litbox launch	High — Watch
Palitra L	● Active	23	218 days	Subscription funnel + distributor recruitment	High — Watch
Intelekti	● Active	2	3 days	Flash sale + cultural event tie-in	Medium

Artanuji	● Dark	0	—	Inactive on Meta	No threat

* Palitra L's 23 "active" ads includes historical 2023 entries surfacing for the first time. Genuinely current campaigns are a subset. The 218-day figure reflects distributor recruitment ads (started Oct 2025), not the subscription video. The subscription video has run 57 days.

Biblusi				High Priority	11 Active Ads
Biblusi is running the most diversified ad set in the competitive set this week: 11 active ads across at least four distinct campaign types. The core of their spend is a May-long promotion stack — a 50% off selected books offer (1479129720606627 , 9 days), a 1+1 deal on Wignebi Batumshi publisher titles (carousel 2041928350069514 , 15 days — highest-run ad in their current set), and a 30% discount on Nonfiction series (1454070896734068 , "Send message" CTA). The monthly catalog ad (2290189301509157 , linking to a Fliphtml5 digital catalog) is a notable format — a paginated digital catalog as a landing experience rather than a product page. The biggest development is the Litbox launch. Three ads went live May 13–14 (1526949895590515 , 1298719928898742 , 990396406878762), all Georgian-language, all linking to litbox.ge. One features celebrity endorsement from Mancho Nozadze. The hook: "Litbox is a literary guide that combines a book with interesting, practical, and pleasant items." This is a subscription box product — a new revenue stream and loyalty mechanism. At 1 day old, too early to judge traction, but the multi-ad launch push signals a real strategic initiative. Also notable: a World Cup Panini sticker collection ad launched today (2468119000289017) — a seasonal, non-book product category. Biblusi is clearly willing to merchandise adjacent categories.

ACTIVE ADS	LONGEST RUNNING	CAMPAIGN TYPES	LITBOX ADS LIVE

Palitra		High Priority	23 Active Ads
L
Palitra L has by far the largest active ad footprint. However, the majority of their "new" ads in this scan are historical entries from 2023 surfacing for the first time — subscription carousel ads, seasonal discounts, and 1+1 deals from April–November 2023. These should not be read as current campaign activity. What is genuinely current and significant: ad 688406637668355 , a "how to become a website subscriber" video explainer, has run from March 18 to May 14 — 57 days and still active. It walks users through the subscription sign-up flow, targets Facebook only, and uses a "Shop now" CTA to palitral.ge/subscriptions. At nearly two months continuous runtime, this is a proven acquisition driver. Their three "become a book distributor" ads (790523250247225 , 740351082391746 , 1553052555705823 , all started October 2025, 218 days) are a supply-side recruitment play — advertising to potential resellers, not readers. No other competitor is replicating this. Palitra L is the only competitor confirmed running on Facebook Messenger as a primary placement — most of their ads are Facebook/Messenger only, not Instagram.

ACTIVE ADS	DISTRIBUTOR ADS	SUBSCRIPTION VIDEO	UNIQUE PLACEMENT

Intelekti			Medium	2 Active Ads
Two active ads. The more interesting (1690048508797374 , launched May 14) is a scarcity/urgency play: every book on intelekti.ge for 15 GEL, but only from 15:00–20:00 on May 15. The copy enumerates every device the reader should set a reminder on — phone, laptop, tablet, smartwatch, calendar, sticky notes — ending with a winky face. Playful and very specific. The mechanic creates genuine urgency through time-gating rather than quantity-gating. No CTA button, awareness-focused. The second ad (1523676185923885 , May 11, 3 days) promotes co-organization of the first-ever Ibero-American Literary Festival in Tbilisi, May 11–15, with three new Georgian translations released for the event. Hook: cultural event + new product launch.

ACTIVE ADS	FLASH SALE WINDOW	FLASH SALE PRICE

Diogene			Low Priority	3 Active Ads
Diogene has 3 active ads, all Georgian-language, all using an editorial/literary-recommendation hook rather than price. Two ads (985481200521108 and 2566561460425540 , both May 14) promote "Crossing the Mangrove Forest" by Maryse Condé by framing it as a companion read for fans of Wuthering Heights — a sophisticated comparative-literature angle. A third promotes the Georgian translation of Julia Cameron's "The Artist's Way" with a world bestseller hook. Their longest running ad is 0 days — no ad has durability. Refresh rate of 4 ads in 30 days is moderate and their spend appears low. Not a significant paid-media threat at current levels.

Moubari

Low

One active carousel ad (2044650799447844 , May 11, 3 days). Hook: free delivery on online orders from moubary.com, "Shop now" CTA. Basic transactional push — no seasonal angle, no specific title. Total active count of 1 and a refresh rate of 1 suggests minimal investment. Not a serious paid-media competitor at this time.

Artanuji

Dark

Zero currently active ads. The seven entries appearing as "new" are all historical ads from 2021–2024 (Black Friday 2021, Ukraine-war nonfiction 2022, title launches 2023–24) surfacing because this is the first scan. They appear entirely inactive on Meta. Whether this reflects paused budget, organic-only strategy, or a shift to other channels (Google, TikTok) is unknown.

STATUS

PATTERNS ACROSS THE SET

Subscription is the frontier

Palitra L has been building a subscription funnel for at least two years. Biblusi just launched a subscription box this week. No other competitor has this. Sulakauri has no subscription product visible in this scan.

1+1 bundles dominate promos

Biblusi runs a 1+1 on Wignebi Batumshi titles; Palitra L ran many 1+1 carousels historically. It is the standard promotional mechanic of the Georgian book market.

100% Georgian-language copy

Not a single English-primary ad across all six competitors. The Georgian-speaking parent/reader is the universal target. English copy has no role in paid acquisition in this market.

Scarcity mechanics are underused

Intelekti's 5-hour flash sale is the only pure urgency play in the set. Biblusi uses "month-end" framing but that is a soft deadline. Clear opening for more aggressive scarcity mechanics.

Format diversity is low

Most ads are single-image or format-unknown. Biblusi uses carousels for the 1+1 promotion. Nobody is running video creatives in current active ads except Palitra L's 57-day subscription explainer.

Messenger placement is unique

Palitra L is the only competitor confirmed running on Facebook Messenger as a primary placement. Most competitors target Facebook/Instagram. An unusual placement worth investigating.

ADS WORTH STUDYING

688406637668355 Palitra L — Subscription Explainer Video (57 days)

The most durable creative in the competitive set. It teaches the audience a process (how to sign up) rather than making a discount offer. The hook is educational, not promotional. If it has run 57 days it is converting. Worth pulling apart: what does the video show, what sign-up friction does it overcome, and why does Facebook-only placement work for this message when Instagram is absent?

2041928350069514 Biblusi — 1+1 Wignebi Batumshi Carousel (15 days)

The longest-running Biblusi creative in this scan, deployed across Facebook/Instagram/Audience Network/WhatsApp/Threads — the widest platform set. The headline framing — "for Biblusi's loyal readers" — is a social proof/loyalty hook rather than a raw discount hook. 15 days is enough to call this a winner in Biblusi's portfolio. Multi-image carousel format with at least 3 frames.

OPEN QUESTIONS FOR NEXT SCAN

1

Litbox traction

The Litbox launch is 1 day old. Is this a soft launch or a full push? Monitor over the next 7–14 days. If the ads scale, Biblusi has a subscription product that directly competes with Palitra L. If they go dark, it was a test.

2 Artanuji's status

Are they entirely off Meta, running only organically, or shifted to another channel (Google, TikTok)? The complete absence of active ads is unusual for a publisher running campaigns as recently as January 2024.

3 Palitra L's distributor network

Three ads recruiting "book distributors" have run since October 2025 (218 days). What is the model — MLM-style resellers or retail channel partners? If it is working at 218-day duration, it represents a distribution moat competitors are not building.

4 Intelekti's flash sale result

The May 15 flash sale (15:00–20:00) will have concluded. Did they run a follow-up ad? What was the volume impact? Worth manually checking their page or website on May 16 to see if a post-sale ad appeared.

5 Diogene's platform mix

Their active ads are Facebook and Instagram only — no Audience Network or WhatsApp. Is this intentional targeting or budget constraint? Their literary-hook copy may skew toward older Facebook demographics rather than Instagram.
